Module "Personal Competencies" at the Studienseminar Helmstedt

The area of personal competencies was implemented in the Lower Saxony regulation on the training and examination of teachers "Vorbereitungsdienst" (APVO-Lehr) based on an initiative by the Conference of Ministers of Education of Federal Republic of Germany in 2010. This is considered a novelty in the German teacher training system, as this highly significant area for the professional action competence of teachers was explicitly included in official training curricula for the first time. Accordingly, there were hardly any educational-didactic experiences and traditions at the training institutions in this area to build upon. Even today, the area of personal competencies in the German teacher training system for the first and second phases is often still regarded as "in development."

The Studienseminar Helmstedt began its journey in 2010 and has qualified trainers in this area through internal seminars, trainer training, and workshops, subsequently developing its own training module, which has been scientifically evaluated in its core areas. Since 2016, the "Personal Competencies Module" has been a fixed part of the training curriculum of the pedagogy seminars at the Studienseminar Helmstedt and has since been continuously evaluated and further developed, incorporating mindfulness-based exercise elements. The following pages provide an overview of the genesis, basic structure, as well as the essential contents and methods of the module.

Principles that guided the development of the Module "Personal Competencies":

- Enabling person-centered learning processes in a non-evaluative space
- Dissolution of traditional group structures
- Initiation of sustainable learning processes through sequential events
- Implementation of the training module with internal personnel resources
- Integration of the module into the mandatory seminar curriculum and the existing organizational and time structure.

"Where does it hurt?" (problem-solving interview)

Example:

The principal asks the trainee teacher to organize a sports festival.

- 1. Describe the situation.
- 2. The interviewer helps to specify the problem.
- 3. Goal? What do you want?
- 4. Have you ever experienced a similar situation?
- 5. What did you do to solve it?
- 6. What competencies do you already have to resolve this situation in line with your goal?
- 7. Which ones do you still need to strengthen?
- 8. How could you do that?
- 3. Get to know various techniques of work organization (creating folders, tidying up, filing systems, ensuring undisturbed time, etc.) and time management (punctuality, buffer times, free times, etc.), select the most helpful ones individually, and present them.
- This is what I already do/this is what I will take with me.
- 4. Learn about and present additional methods of time management: Pareto (80/20 rule), ABC (very important, important, and less important tasks), ALPEN (review tasks, estimate length, plan buffer times, make decisions, follow-up), Salami (break tasks into smaller parts), Eisenhower (prioritize tasks by importance and urgency).
- 5. Use the learned techniques and methods to find solutions for the situations analyzed at the beginning.
- 6. Evaluation.
